Brief portrait of your organisation/business	The Poppy Factory provides an employment service to ex-Service people with medical barriers to employment. We do this both through our factory in Richmond, (making poppies, crosses and wreaths) as well as across England and Wales supporting individuals in their own communities to source meaningful and sustained work. The Poppy Factory develops relationships with employers to create opportunities for their client base as well as empowering individuals to source their own work. 1-1 support is provided enabling clients to apply confidently for roles and where necessary look at the employment pathway via training, volunteering and placements to increase confidence and employability. Additionally a year in-work support is provided to ensure the transition has been successful and the client is settled in their new career path.
